

The Effect of Heterogeneity on Online Collaborations

As we move further into the 21st century more and more time is spent on online communities. Many online communities are not simply means of entertainment but productive groups where problems are posed and solved. The goal of my research is to learn how the heterogeneity of skills in a population of users effects how successful an online community will be.